

AI Working Groups

Within the context of law firms, AI working groups are becoming increasingly common.

They provide an opportunity to bring together a multi-disciplinary team of AI-interested individuals to explore key themes and goals around such technologies.

Scroll on for some considerations as to why an AI working group could support your legal team in this tech-evolving landscape.

TRIALVIEW[®]

- Derive key insights on AI use within legal practice, as well as businesses generally;
- Establish and research the most up-to-date regulatory frameworks for ethical practices within the context of AI use;
- Develop protocols and workflows to leverage AI tools and functionality into client matters successfully;
- Invest in training for employees where there is a demonstrated business need to do so;

TRIALVIEW[®]

- Drive market competition by offering clients technological solutions, including AI tools, which save billable time and resources, and deliver these solutions with more transparency;
- Gain an understanding of AI within the context of their clients' businesses, and offer the most up-to-date legal advice on issues related to such technologies;
- Keep abreast of future projections around AI, particularly where there are legal implications or real-world applications within legal practice.

TRIALVIEW[®]